Smuggling a Clock-A Lady in au Awkward Situation. The Missouri Democrat tells the follow-ng story of one of the defiant rebel ladies ately returned from Canada to St. Louis: The revocation by the Provost Marshal General of the orders banishing certain rebels from the State, has caused the return to our city of many high spirited per-sons of both sexes. A few of these indi-viduals retain all their former haughtiness and pride, but the majority of them are subdued in spirit, humble in deportment, and rather seedy in sppearance. Very few of them during the period of their banishment, "moved in the first circles," but nearly all were compelled to descend to the level of the "mud sills" whom they despised in the days of their prosperity, and to earn a subsistence in the lowlist walks of life. Even the fairer portion of the exiles found it necessary to turn their dainty hands to menial employments, and their banishment had one good effect, if no other, it tangent them the sweet uses of versity.

One of the fair exiles who has recently returned to this city on the revocation of edict banishment, rabites a striking incident of her experience in Canada. On re-ceiving permission to return home she concluded to engage in a little speculation that would assist in paying the expenses of the trip. All kinds of goods are very chesp in Canada, compared with prices here, and the duty being high, smuggling is carried on to a great extent along the border, the American ladles being particularly skillful in concealing contraband articles in the folds of their petticoats and smong the convolutions of their duplex elliptic skirts. So common had these little smuggling transactions become of late, that the merchants of the Canadian border

Our St. Louis lady had taken a fancy to one of those beautiful little Germon clocks which can be wound up to strike at any moment the owner may desire to be awakened, and she concluded to purchase it and snuggle it across the line. There was a heavy blow on Lake Brie making her last purchase.

The lady delighted with her purchase, and anticipating many a laugh with her St. Louis friend over the story of her Canadian clock, fastened the time piece securely to her hoops, and started on her homeward ourney. Arriving at the custom house without accident, she met the inquisitive collector with a complainant countenance, and submitted without a tremor to the search which was instituted among her baggage. The officer found nothing con-traband among her offices and was pussing to the next traveler, whrn a loud where! was heard under the lady's skirts. The strange noise was kept up for the full space of a minute, but to the indy it seemed an hour, and she became tremulous and ex-cited. The custom house officer, not daring to lay his hands on a woman, "save in the way of kindness," obtained an iron rod, with which he felt around the crinoline for bringing it down, but the crystal was broken, and the hands were beaten by the opera-tion. The lady arrived safely in St. Louis last week, and told the story of the clock herself, and therefore cannot blame us for
